Classes are fun and fascinating.
But if you're too busy, or you
don't have a partner,
you can learn Argentine Tango
on your own at home.

Then go out and enjoy milongas!

Private practice is how you develop
your partnerships
and train your body to become a better partner.

From a student I have never met in person:

“Dear Vio...This last Saturday
one of the best dancers in [my country] said
I had improved a lot since last time we danced (2 months ago)
which can only be to your credit.”

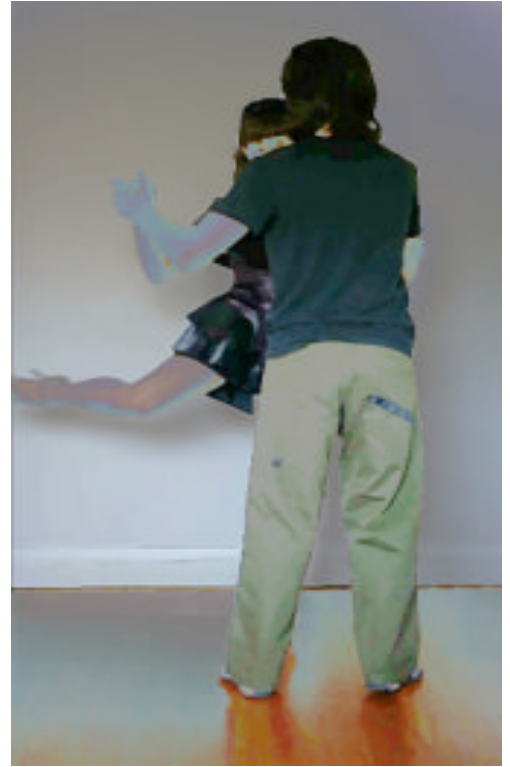

Most dancers don't improve because they don't have a regular partner for classes, or classes are not convenient. And many students don't practice because they don't have a structure. Our Argentine Tango online courses and tools provide structure for effective Private Practice.

Every teacher will tell you that both partnered and solo Private Practice is essential to improvement.

Regardless of which “style” of tango you prefer, all Argentine Tango relies on the same skills of body control for connection and communication. TangoForge has studied the correct anatomy and biomechanics of these basic skills. We give precise instructions in objective scientific terminology, so that you can train in a clear and direct manner, without abstract metaphors.

Students also have access to our Exercise Facility, which illustrates and explains important muscles' function and provides exercises to help increase your muscle control.
